AL SMITH ANSWERS RELIGIOUS QUIZ

FAITH NOT IN CONFLICT WITH THE CONSTITUTION

A Catholic Can Be Loyal To His Church and Loyal To His Country At the Same Time—Believes In the Separation of State and Church Which Has Been Exemplified In His Public Career—Believes In the Support of the Public Schools As One of the Corner Stones of American Liberty.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, in a letter to the Atlantic Monthly, Sunday at Boston, declares that he recognizes no power in the Roman Catholic church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the laws of the land.

The governor says: "Taking your letter as a whole and reducing it to commonplace English you imply that there is conflict between religious loyalty to the Catholic faith and patriotic loyalty to the United States."

The governor declared that "every thing that has happened to me during my long public career leads me to know that no such thing is true."

Governor Smith summed up his career as "an American Catholic" as follows:

"I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church. I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the law of the land."

"I believe in absolute freedom of conscience for all men and in equality of all churches, all sects and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor."

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state and in the strict enforcement of the provisions of the constitution that congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the cornerstones of American liberty. I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith."

"I believe in the principle of non-interference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations and that we should stand steadfastly against any such interference by whomsoever it may be urged. And I believe in the common brotherhood of man under the common fatherhood of God."

"In this spirit I join with fellow Americans of all creeds in a fervent prayer that never again in this land will any public servant be challenged because of the faith in which he has tried to walk humbly with his God."

The governor, at the start of his letter write: "You impute to American Catholics views which, if held by them, would leave open to question the loyalty and devotion to this country and its constitution of more than 20,000,000 American Catholic citizens. I am grateful to you for defining this issue in the open and for your courteous expression of the satisfaction it will bring to my fellow citizens to me to give 'a disclaimer of the convictions' thus imputed."

"Without mental reservation I can and do make that disclaimer. These convictions are held neither by me nor by any other American Catholic as far as I know. Before answering the argument of your letter, however, I must dispose of one of its implications. You put your questions to me in connection with my candidacy for the office of president of the United States. My attitude with respect to that was fully stated in my last inaugural address as governor when, on January 1, 1927, I said:

"I have no idea what the future has in store for me. Everyone else in the United States has some notion about it except myself. No man could stand before this intelligent gathering and say that he was not receptive to the greatest position the world has to give to anyone. But I can say this, that I will do nothing to achieve it except to give to the people of this state the kind and character of service that will make me deserve it."

"I should be a poor American and a poor Catholic alike if I injected religious discussion into a political campaign. Therefore, I would ask you to accept this answer from me not as a candidate for any public office, but as an American citizen, honored with a high elective office, meeting a challenge to his patriotism and his intellectual integrity."

LITTLE WALNUT FINALLY GIVES UP ITS DEAD

Body of Ernest Dishman, Drowned March 19, Was Found Sunday Morning.

The body of Ernest Dishman, the young man drowned in Little Walnut creek, Saturday night, March 19, was found Sunday morning on a sand bar at the Six Mile bridge near the Walters farm, just below the tourist camp. The body was discovered by three boys of Ashville; S. C. Sampsill, Gee Salley and Cecil Scott.

Coroner Dunton viewed the body and turned it over to the Albaugh Undertaking company. The remains were brought to this city and prepared for burial.

The condition of the body was remarkably good, in that it had not begun to decompose, but the flesh had begun to slip on his face. The body, evidently, had been preserved by the high waters of the past four weeks. The young man it will be remembered was in the employ of Bates & Rodgers, Chesapeake and Hocking railroad contractors and he lost his life when he attempted to cross the trestle work, while the creek was a raging torrent. He was drowned at the same spot where another employee of the same company, William Truex, lost his life January 19, and whose remains was recovered two weeks ago.

Ernest Dishman was born February 1, 1903, at Burksville, Kentucky, and was a son of C. W. and Minnie Murphy Dishman. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers; J. S. Dishman, of Wyoming and Stanley Dishman of Forest Cottage, Kentucky and one sister, Miss Beulah Dishman, at home.

The remains were shipped to the home of his parents at Forest Cottage Monday morning by the Albaugh company. Funeral services will be held Wednesday, April 20.

Poor Man! Barbers Plan Masculine Hair Styles

Indianapolis.—A haircut was just a haircut until woman invaded the barber shop and demanded modes in scissors-wielding.

Now man is to have his choice of hair-cut styles just as definite as those from which woman chooses. Henceforth, under plans of the journeymen barbers' union, his periodic trip to the barber is to be a seance with Dame Fashion.

The union will educate male patrons to have their hair cut to a style adaptable to head and facial contour. Later, says Jacob Fisher, president, a board of fashion arbiters may be established and new styles created.

In the Victorian days the barber's artistic urge found outlet in the trimming of beards to conform with the patron's personality, through the grooming of goatees and sideburns. The barren jowl ended that. But again, after many years, men's hair-cutting is to be an art as well as a trade.

INVISIBLE RAY REVEALS ENEMY IN THE DARKNESS

Secret Discovered by British Inventor Is Carefully Guarded by Government.

London.—The British government is jealously guarding its new war secret, a mysterious invisible searchlight ray which makes it impossible for an enemy to conduct military operations at night unobserved.

It is one of the most formidable war weapons yet discovered, and it was discovered accidentally.

John L. Baird, inventor of the television and the discoverer of the mysterious ray, looks more like a staid college professor than a scientist who is perfecting a powerful weapon for a powerful government. He accidentally stumbled on the new ray while he was trying to perfect the television apparatus with which he now broadcasts pictures by radio as far as 150 miles.

It belongs in the infra-red section of the spectrum outside the range of the human eye. His process is to isolate and use the ray which the human eye cannot see, but which is susceptible of being recorded on his secret apparatus.

"So far we are seeing over comparatively short distances, but it has now become simply a question of certain technical improvements and the application of greater power in order to be able to see a person or a scene which is thousands of miles distant from the point where we are looking into the receiving screen."

His associate, Capt. O. G. Hutchinson, goes even further. "Attacking airplanes approaching under the cover of darkness will be disclosed to the defending headquarters by the electric eye of the televisior. They will be followed by searchlights emitting invisible rays, and as these rays will be unseen by them, they will continue to approach until, without warning, they are brought down by the guns of the defense."

Longest Street in World

Washington street, as it runs from Boston to Providence, R. I., has had some fame as being the longest street in the world, but that honor appears to belong to Watling street, in England, which runs as such from London to Liverpool.

All Material Things Matter of Viewpoint

A Minneapolis bookseller, speaking one day of a book collector who was making his cautious way through a pile of old books that had just come in, said of him, not disrespectfully, "He is a rather close buyer." I watched him carefully lay aside two or three books that had a suspicious look. Then, after he had gone through the pile I saw him return to the suspicious books, collate them carefully, study their title pages, the copyrights on the back of these pages, give a general look at their condition, and then lay them back on the pile. The decision had been against them.

The next collector who came along would doubtless examine them with interest, buy them to overflow his shelves and fill a place in his closets or garret, whence they would, in time, find their way again to the second-hand bookstore. He was the less cautious buyer, A. J. R. comments, in the Minneapolis Journal.

I once read of "a close buyer" in another line who must have had Yankee ancestry. He did the buying for the family larder and carried a microphone. With this invention, he cautiously tested the nuts and apples. If a worm were inside, the microphone rendered its gnawing audible and the apple or nut was rejected. The fruiterer regarded the man's actions with some distaste.

I thought of the robin's work on the lawn. Doubtless the bird has a microphonic ear and is able to hear the earthworm gnawing away at the planet, and thus he locates his prey and drags him triumphantly out.

Everything in the point of view. The man with the microphone doubtless patted himself on his mental back and thought of himself as a cautious and wise buyer. The fruiterer's inner description of him was not so flattering. Speaking of the point of view, the bishop of Hereford, in England, is quoted in an epigram that will make you smile. He says:

"I occasionally exhort the clergy of my own diocese to learn to conjugate: 'I am firm, thou art obstinate, he is pig-headed!'"

Pennant Scarecrows

Tiny flags that may be seen fluttering in the gardens in Japan are used to frighten birds away, thus protecting the garden. A lath upright is placed about every 20 feet, and a cord carried from post to post. On the cord strips of paper and cloth are tied. The fluttering pennants are, therefore, a graceful adaptation of the scarecrow idea.

ALASKA, NOT GOLD, HOLDS SOURDOUGHS

Stay Despite Wealth and World Outside.

Fairbanks, Alaska.—One section of interior Alaska is a land of forgotten men. And the men themselves have wiped from their minds all memories of the vanities of the civilized world outside.

Three dozen men are living within the Arctic circle on the Koyukuk river with fortunes in gold, ranging from $35,000 to $75,000, according to Capt. Earl Webb, a prospector, who, after striking pay, is here on his regular winter vacation.

Most of the self-interested men are a remnant of the great trek toward the mecca of gold in the early Klondike days. They prospect the creeks in summer, hunt, fish and trap in winter. They have married native women and settled down to enjoy their modest fortunes where wants are limited to food and a few clothes.

They use the parcel post and express to secure what luxuries their tastes demand, but there is no desire to leave their polar wilderness.

Now and then some prospector makes an unusually large cleanup and turns his dust in at one of the local banks. Then only can an estimate be made of the amount of gold being regularly taken from one of Alaska's creeks. And the greatest amounts apparently come from streams far within the Arctic circle.

The reticent attitude of the grim miners who come and go in silence and secrecy gives rise to many rumors of greater wealth than the world has ever known somewhere up there along the edge of the known land.

What lies in the undiscovered continent just beyond Point Barrow offers the greatest lure to Alaskan sourdoughs.

That gold in large nuggets of a peculiar bright yellow color is waiting in the creeks along the tundra country is certain, for but recently one miner brought by dog sled four cases of dust as but a portion of his cleanup. The four parcels totaled over $40,000.

Airplanes alone can aid men in reaching and holding down these storm-bound regions and bring them supplies week in and week out, say old-timers. But the lure of gold will bring airplanes sooner or later.

Wax Finish for Floors

Although the wax will act as a filler if applied directly to the oak floor, it is best to use a paste filler slightly colored as a basis for the wax finish. Slightly colored paste filler tends to equalize the variation in color between various pieces of flooring and results in a more beautiful floor.

Chinese Philanthropy Odd

Quaint forms of philanthropy are evident in almost every part of China. Funds are maintained for transporting to his native province any man who dies away from home, another organization provides coffins for poor children, and another society sets up "drinking fountains" of tea or water for the thirsty coolies who are lowest in the scale of Chinese labor.

Linen Returns to Favor for Spring and Summer

Sport linen frocks have been in greater numbers than ever before at the Southern resorts and they are forecast as popular items of the spring and summer wardrobes. The constant appearance of silk at all times of the year is apt to become monotonous and the smart woman is searching for something new to add variety and originality to her summer gowns. One thing which has given impetus to the linen vogue is the introduction of a noncrushable cloth which is practically free of the old wrinkling habits of the fabric. This is accomplished by a pre-shrinkage of the cloth from 45 to 36 inches. Possibly the interest society has felt in the flashing white figures on the tennis courts may have suggested the solution. In any case white linen has made a spectacular entry on the fashion stage through the medium of the sports dress, and its popularity is spreading fast.

Checks Are on List to Have Vogue This Spring

A revival of checked materials is among the many new modes promised by those sending information from the fashion centers of Paris. Big checks, little checks, broken checks and the conventional designs that are so chic. They appear in the silks, the light weight woolsens, even on the cotton fabrics which are destined to have a vogue from all reports. Checks must be used with discretion, however, especially the large designs, and the broken effects. Small checked materials, however, are not so trying, so that any woman who likes them may indulge her taste in some way at least. As checks tend toward the tailored effects, they will be found most adaptable to the present day modes.

Bolero, Belt, Blousant, Smart Costume Words

Bolero, belt and blousant are three words which have been frequently used by couturiers this season. Practically every frock presented claims the right to the use of one of these smart words, some models even coming in for a double share of chic in this regard. On the blousing bodice appeared two superposed plaits giving the effect of a bolero, while the wide belt, draped into a buckle in front, left no doubt as to the designer's intention to indicate definitely just where the waistline should be. The sleeves are long and the skirt is straight and widened by large box plaits.

Latest Raincoat Models in Toned-Down Colors

Raincoats have run a wide gamut of both materials and colors in the last year. Some have been wild enough for the mists and deluges of Borneo. But now the rain shedders are taking on more sober characteristics. The more expensive dress designers are originating them with as much care as the garments they cover. One of the latest is of waterproofed black satin lined with black and white checked silk which also forms collar, cuffs and lapels.

The Practical Sports Suit

Designers of the popular sports suit nowadays have a task to perform in obtaining practicability and decorativeness at the same time. They have discovered it is possible to be practical in a becoming way. That is why white is the favorite color utilized at the moment. Beige with some bright color in conjunction also is advocated.

Paid for Stolen Onion

An onion stolen 35 years ago from Hagemeyer's grocery store at Holden, Mo., finally proved too strong for the conscience of S. G. Yoder, now of Kent, Ohio. He inclosed a $1 bill in this letter: "About 35 years ago I and my schoolmates were at your store in Holden, Mo., and we each took an onion, unknown to you. Now the good Lord has burdened our souls and we want to make restitution and ask His forgiveness."—Exchange.

SHE COULDN'T BE FOOLED

A recent bride on one of her first shopping trips determined to have it out with the butcher.
 "That was a terrible hamburger I bought here yesterday!" she said.
 "Is that so? I'm sorry to hear that. Here is some we made today. Try it. I'm sure you'll find it very good."
 "No, indeed," she said. "You don't fool me again; just give me two pounds of ham and I'll make my own hamburger."—Forbes Magazine.

Morg Help

"Has your husband a prospering business?" the young bride was asked.
 "Indeed he has," was the confident reply. "He must be taking lots of money, for he told me last night they had to appoint a receiver to assist him."

Ghost Halts Searchfor Panama Treasure

New York.—Excavating at old Panama for treasure buried when Sir Henry Morgan, British pirate, raided the city in the Seventeenth century, has been halted by the appearance of a "ghost," says a cablegram received at the Hamburg-American line offices here.

The message came from Ernest G. Schmolck, cruise manager on the steamer Reliance which is making a cruise of the West Indies with 350 passengers, who visited the treasure site.

The laborers, said Schmolck, are superstitious and fear a "bad spell" such as was reputed to have followed the excavation of King Tut's tomb at Luxor, Egypt.

Lieut. George Williams and Fred Kelley, Englishmen, and Wallace Bain, an American, recently uncovered valuable gold relics and gems beneath the ruins of the San Jose convent.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

Seems like somebody has imposed on us a little by carrying the mumps into Folksburg, and a few people are now suffering painfully but not seriously with the same. Personally, the writer has nothing to fear, for we grew up in a generation when a body had everything that was catching by the time he had learned to walk real good.

Mrs. Elmira Peck was visited for a while last Sunday by some people from Newport that she used to know. They were in a mighty fine automobile, and Elmira persuaded them to ride her around town some so that she could wave at her friends and let them see her in that very expensive machine.

Charlie Tolliver, who moved to Folksburg two or three years ago, was visited last week by some of his kin folks from Polk county. They were mighty curious to learn how he is getting along, and when he intimated that he is managing to break even, why it seemed like they thought he had done well by coming here.

Mrs. Amanda Bell has seen an advertisement in the city paper of a store that's run by somebody named Bell. She thinks they might be a realtion, and is planning to go up next week and see if she can get a discount on some things she wants to buy.

While Tom Riley was out walking yesterday with his young son, Billie Boy, they met Andrew Allen, and when Tom asked how everything was, Andrew said it was only tolerable. Billie Boy didn't quite understand what that meant, and Tom explained it by saying it was about like as if Billy wanted two dollars to buy an air-gun, and got a quarter to buy a bean flipper.

Mrs. Emmett Tucker was a little peeved the other day on account of she was telling some of her friends that Emmett's got his life insured for $3,000, and somebody remarked in a half-way joke that everything is priced higher now than it's worth.

It was mentioned in these items last week that Mrs. Ed Thomas had lost one of her gloves, which she hoped if anybody found they'd return it to her. Somebody has just sent her one of these striped canvas gloves and wants to know is that it. Mrs. Thomas wishes to say that hers were kid leather, the best pair that the Star store had in stock.

Miss Daisy Bell, who was to sing a solo at a special function at the school building next Friday night has given notice that she won't be able to appear unless they get out some more programs, and have her name in bigger print than it was on the first ones.

Uncle Bill Bobbitt was speaking recently how storekeepers have changed from what they used to be when they went around with a stub pencil over their ear, and measured a yard of calico by holding it at arm's length from the end of their nose. And he says he knew one man who had such a long nose that he cheated the buyer an inch or two on every yard he measured.

Jason Crabb tried to get his money back that he paid to go into a show at the Gem Theater Saturday night on account of somebody else had the seat that he always sits in.

Lewis Jackson, who has been trying hard for a good while to start a bank account, managed to put in ten dollars last week, and he's been telling several what a safe feeling it gives a man to have money in the bank.

Some comment was made the other day how fast Earl Smiley walks when he goes from one place to another around town, just as if he had something terribly important on hand. And the general opinion was that he might as well take it a little slower, for he usually reaches his destination before he's thought of any particular reason why he's there.

AMUSEMENTS

The Eagle of the Sea! What thoughts that phrase must bring to mind! Galleons of gold! Merchant ships! Men-o-war! Valiant vessels! Bold buccaneers! Plundering pirates!

All these will be seen at the Met theater when Frank Lloyd's first Paramount production, "The Eagle of the Sea," makes its local debut. This Charles Tenney Jackson story traces the life of Jean Lafitte, noted American pirate, from the day he adopts the name "Captain Sazarc," until he wins the woman of his heart. Needless to say, this is only accomplished after many hazardous voyages, like adventures and fierce fights.

History tells us that Lafitte won amnesty for himself and devil-dog crew when they helped "Old Hickory" Jackson at the Battle of New Orleans. All became respected citizens with the solitary exception of their captain. He broke his parole and disappeared. A reward was then offered for his capture—dead or alive.

With this colorful past, Jean Lafitte arrives in New Orleans seven years later, just at a time when General Jackson's return is being celebrated. There he falls in love with Colonel Lestron's lovely niece, Louise. His courtship progresses very nicely until—Jackson recognizes him and she vehemently voices her dislike of men such as Lafitte.

Then—things started happening. But they come in such surprising fashion that each presents a greater thrill than the one preceding it. Florance Vidor, justly called "the orchid lady of the screen" is featured as is Ricardo Cortez, playing the most spectacular role of his career, that of Jean Lafitte.

Only Little Sunlight

House plants require some direct sunlight, says Nature Magazine. While geraniums and the like thrive in a bright sunny window, ferns and palms prefer a shadier location, with only a little sunlight. Too hot a house is unhealthy for plants, but a sudden change of temperature is worst of all.

The Big Capacity MAYTAG Tub Makes Spring Cleaning easy

THE Maytag's satin-smooth cast-aluminum tub has an exceptionally large capacity. There is ample room for heavy blankets, draperies, curtains, fluffy rugs, and other bulky things that you want washed during spring cleaning time before you store them away.

The tub is heat-retaining—keeps water hot for an entire washing. Through adjustable legs, one of many Maytag comfort-giving features, the washer is easily raised or lowered to suit your height. The tub drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

The famous Maytag wringer sets close to the water level—does away with the lifting of heavy wet pieces and automatically adjusts itself to a heavy blanket or sheer handkerchief and wrings both equally dry.

Phone the Maytag Dealer

Use a Maytag next washday without obligation or expense. Wash big tubfuls of ordinary clothes in 3 to 7 minutes. Wash even collar and cuff edges without hand-rubbing. Do a whole washing in one hour. After you have once used the Maytag you will easily understand why it is the world's most-wanted washer—why it won World Leadership in less than 600 days. Try the Maytag—if it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Maytag dealers everywhere follow the standardized rule of sending a Maytag to a home to do a week's washing free, and without obligation of any kind. This is the way all Maytag Gyrafoam Washers are sold.

How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness.

HAS 'EM BAFFLED

Officials Don't Know What To Do With Slayer, 4.

Chambersburg, Pa., April 15.—(UP.)—There was no regret, only defiance, in the attitude of 4-year-old Tommy Ruby today as his sorrowing father prepared the lad to attend the funeral of the mother Tommy shot to death.

Coroner Shull has announced that no charges will be pressed against the youth, who, when questioned regarding the killing of his mother, Mrs. Hull Ruby, answered:

"Sure I shot her. I'd shoot her again."

No one seems willing to advance an opinion in town as to what should be done with the lad.

During the questioning of Tommy concerning the shooting he grasped a butcher knife and sought to stab Coroner Shull.

Communion Table Profaned

Shaking of dice on the communion table for Bibles, a custom started 250 years ago in a church at St. Ives, England, has been altered so that the casting will take place on a table placed on the chancel steps. The unusual procedure was started by provisions of the will of Dr. Robert Wild, who bequeathed $250, the yearly income from which was to be expended on Bibles to be cast for by dice on the communion table by six boys and six girls.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Petitioned To End Receivership of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

Washington, April 16.—The mission to end the receivership of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, said to be one of the largest foreclosures in financial history, was asked today of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This would be the effect of the application filed today with the Commission by the 101-day-old "Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific R.R." organized in Wisconsin by a large majority of the security holders of the old company to take over this eleven thousand mile system operating in twelve of the Northwest states. The only change from the old name of the road is the addition of the word "Pacific."

As one of the outstanding features of the reorganization of the company's financial structure, authority to issue several classes of new securities is asked in the application. They include $106,395,096 principal amount of Fifty Year Five Per Cent Mortgage Bonds, $182,873,693 of Five Per Cent Convertible Adjustment Mortgage Bonds, $118,845,800 par amount of preferred stock, and 1,174,060 shares of common stock without nominal or par value.

The reorganization plan, which was approved recently by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, is unusually comprehensive and, according to railroad experts, will meet all the financial problems of the $750,000,000 "Milwaukee" railroad. The principal objects of the reorganization plan are:

1. A net reduction in the amount of fixed interest-bearing securities of approximately $180,000,000 and a net reduction of annual fixed interest charges on funded debt from about $21,800,000 to less than $14,000,000. This amount, it is believed, will be well within the present earnings of the system, under any conditions. Its present earnings are about $20,000,000 annually.

2. Funding of more than $185,000,000 of obligations maturing during the next ten years into long-term obligations, the interest charges upon more than $104,000,000 of which will be contingent upon earnings. Under its existing capital structure, the system, at the date of receivership, faced maturities during the next ten years of about $239,000,000, which, because of its inadequate earnings, it was without means of meeting.

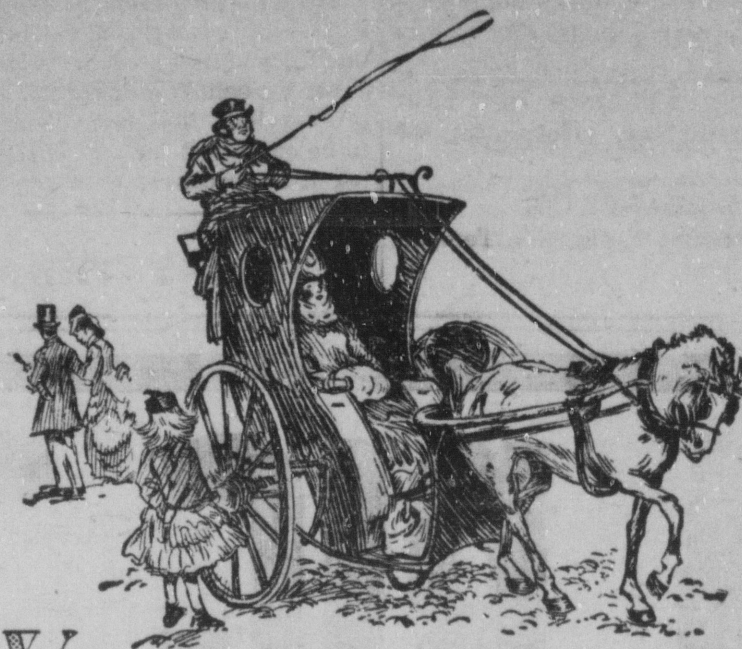

3. Provision for the raising by assessments of about $70,000,000 in cash, of which a large amount is to be set aside for addition and betterment and additional working capital.

4. Release of $18,000,000 of general mortgage bonds now pledged to secure the notes held by the United States Government. The reorganization plan contemplates the immediate adjustment of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul's debt of $55,000,000 to the government. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has accepted the proposed method of repaying the government debt. A saving of approximately $2,000 a day in interest upon the debt to the government will be immediately effected as soon as the plan is consummated. This is but one of many benefits which will accrue from an early termination of the receivership and transfer of the properties to the new company.

5. Adequate provision for the financing of future requirements and for the funding of underlying bonds through the creation of a new financing mortgage of sufficient security to enable the sale of bonds thereunder at normal rate and discounts. At the time of the receivership the railroad had no means of providing for its capital requirements.

The Milwaukee was sold at public auction at Butte, Mont., last November. The purchase price was $140,000,000 and the purchasers assumed all outstanding obligations. The only bid was from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and The National City Company, representing more than eighty per cent of the security holders, banded together to reorganize the property.

It is expected that the Interstate Commerce Commission will grant hearings on the application at an early date.

THE STREETS?

A watch may never lose a second yet be many years slow

The owner of such a watch may never miss a train or an appointment but it is the one false note in his modern makeup, probably the only thing he has that stamps him as a bit old-fashioned, a trifle behind the times. And yet a new and modish Elgin can be had at a moderate sum. Slipped into your pocket, or strapped on your wrist, it will win and hold your affection as no other watch possibly can. For Elgin is conceded to be the world's standard for watch integrity.

Played With Mind Blank

The disclosure is made that during the recent football trial match at Stamford Bridge, Parker, the Arsenal fullback, who was appearing for the Rest against the England eleven, played throughout the second half with his mind a blank.

It was in this half that the game underwent a remarkable transformation, England, who had been two goals down at the interval, winning by 7-3. Parker in some way sustained concussion, and after the match had no recollection whatever of having played in the second half.

It is on record that footballers, while suffering from concussion and quite unconscious of their surroundings, have played with remarkable skill and intelligence, and even scored goals.—London Tit-Bits.

Increased Crop Yield is Shown

Generally Rising Trend Is Indicated by Survey Recently Made.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A generally rising trend in yields per acre of leading crops over the last forty years in the United States is indicated by a survey concluded recently by the Department of Agriculture.

The average yield per acre of corn has increased 18 per cent since 1885, wheat 17 per cent, oats 14 per cent, and potatoes 33 per cent. The total area of the four crops expanded about 52 per cent, but the total production has increased 77 per cent.

Increased production due to higher acre yields alone amounts to 440,000,000 bushels of corn, 120,000,000 bushels of wheat, 165,000,000 bushels of oats, and 115,000,000 bushels of potatoes, a total of over 800,000,000 bushels of the four crops.

Outstanding Increases.

The outstanding increases in yields have been in the North Atlantic and the northern portion of the South Atlantic states, with somewhat lesser increases in the East North Central states. Similar changes have occurred in many portions of the West North Central states where pioneer agricultural methods have disappeared.

Corn yields in the North Atlantic states have increased from 6 to 10 bushels per acre during the 40 years, in the East North Central group from 6 to 12 bushels, and in the northern section of the South Atlantic states from 9 to 14 bushels. Yields average about 8 bushels per acre higher in Iowa, and 6 bushels in Minnesota.

Wheat yields have increased 5 to 8 bushels per acre in the northeastern portions of the country, but a decrease is shown in Ohio and other states in the Ohio valley for the period 1920-24, due largely to unfavorable weather. Despite the expansion of the wheat area in Kansas into semi-arid regions, yields there have remained practically stationary. Yields in Missouri in a considerably expanded wheat area have remained low and practically stationary.

Statistics of wheat yields per acre suggest that the southern part of the corn belt, as represented by Missouri and eastern Kansas, has lagged behind the northern portions as represented by Iowa and Illinois, in the development of agricultural practices and soil management methods that tend to raise the acre yields of important crops.

Pioneer Methods Used.

Continuance of pioneer methods in the spring wheat region and the expansion of wheat production into drier areas have prevented a rise in the state averages. Moreover, the economists point out, since moisture is commonly the limiting factor in crop production in the semiarid portions of the plains states, it appears probable that this part of the country will not experience as much rise in acre yields as is shown for the northeastern states and for northwestern Europe.

Department economists declare that developments in coming decades with regard to acre yields will depend, as in the past, to a great extent on prices of agricultural products. Rising values normally would result in increasing intensification and a higher level productivity through the wider use of better cultivation methods, development of suitable rotations, including the growth of legumes, more efficient use of crop residues and animal manures, greater use of commercial fertilizers, and the more common use of selected seed.

Full details of the department's study have been published in Department Bulletin No. 1458-D, entitled "The Trend Toward a More Effective Use of the Land as Shown by the Yield Per Acre of Certain Crops," copies of which may be obtained upon request to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Agricultural Facts

Sharp shares on the plows mean a better and cheaper piece of plowing.

If the weather never changed, some folks wouldn't have very much to talk about.

Many a poor crop stand in spring can be traced to poorly protected seed in winter.

Seeds are a small part of the cost of raising a crop. Cheap seeds are often expensive at any price.

Bank credit costs only from one-half to one-third as much as credit given by feed dealers and store keepers.

The idea that no trip at sea is complete without a storm might well be applied to life in general—on some days.

They say the boll-weevil was a benefit to southern agriculture. Since the corn borer can't stand good farming, maybe it will have a good effect on the North.

The nature of farm manure is such that large losses of the plant nutrients may occur, so in view of this fact it is necessary to adopt a system of handling manure on the farm which will cut down this loss.

Widow Gets Approximately Half—Brother in Columbus Not Named in Will.

Washington, April 16.—Filed for probate, the will of Perry Sanford Heath, politician and founder of newspapers, disposes of an estate valued at $200,000, about half of which goes to his widow, Mrs. Ella C. Heath was a brother of Fletcher Heath, 1190 East Broad street, Columbus, who gets nothing in the will.

Bennett Heath, nephew, of Muncie, Ind., is given $40,000; Mrs. Cassie H. Bowman, also of Muncie, $10,000; Ralph C. Speed Best Weapon to Foil Cattle Rustlers

Los Angeles, Calif.—Cattle rustling, one of the oldest crimes in California, has had a recent revival, the sheriff's office declared, and special methods have been devised in co-operation with the cattle protection bureau, to stop the thefts and catch the thieves.

Because there have been very few cattle thefts, in the last 20 years until recently, the sheriff's office says, most cattle owners do not know what to do when they learn of their losses. They must act quickly if their action is to do any good, notifying the sheriff with a description of the stolen cattle and their brands.

"Time is an important element in the capture of a cattle thief," says a bulletin put out by the sheriff. "Such a thief transports stock to a slaughter house and has the cattle killed within a few hours of the time he makes the steal. This obliterates the opportunity of the cattle owner identifying his stock or making a conviction in the courts very certain."

Propaganda Always

It is probable that there has been what we now know as propaganda in connection with every important movement in human history. As to the American Revolution, for example, Thomas Paine is said to have made it his boast that he brought about the revolution by his pamphlet, "Common Sense."

Cora's Cases in Storage

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

CORA was in more or less of a quandary as to what was the best way of getting rid of the large cases that were accumulating in her small storage room. Once in a while she wished there were a man about the place.

She had watched boys, with their funny little homemade carts, collecting and splitting up boxes, left on the sidewalks.

"I suppose they make them into kindling," Cora mused and decided she had better haul one of these youngsters and offer him her cases. They were of a fairly decent thickness and no doubt the boys would be glad to cart them away.

Lamp shades, telephone covers, shoe boxes, cushions and things of that sort comprised the stock in trade of Cora's little shop.

"How much can I have them for, miss," asked the lad and Cora noted that he had removed his cap upon coming into the shop.

"Goodness, child, I don't want anything for them. You're doing me a good turn in taking them."

"My brother always gives me a quarter and says I must offer to pay for any especially good boxes I find."

"And what do you use the wood for?" asked Cora.

"My brother has a hobby for making things," announced the small boy proudly, "and he sells a lot of them and gives me the money. I have thirty-seven dollars in the bank now."

"Oh," exclaimed Cora vastly interested. "What things does your brother make?"

"Candlesticks, boxes with birds on them, garden flower poles and even little tables and chairs—all from the wood I get for him. We work evenings after my lessons and—well—Tom's the finest brother in the world."

Cora was sure that she had never met anyone so delightfully naive as this small boy whose brother made "things."

"Tom and I live together and he gets all my meals 'cause he doesn't want me to eat just any old thing. We have a flat."

"I should just love to meet your brother," said Cora, and added swiftly, "perhaps he will let me see some of his wooden things before he sells them elsewhere. Do you think he would?"

"Sure he would," said Barry with much authority for so small a person. "And he'll make some pretty swell boxes out of this fine wood and some peachy bookshelves."

"I can see your bank account being a swell affair, too," laughed Cora and the boy joined in. From that moment they were fast friends and Barry promised to bring his big brother round and also to call for more cases in a day or two.

Cora watched him as he trundled his well-made cart off through the traffic, laden as it was with two large crates.

"I wouldn't mind working for a boy like that either," she told herself and hoped that big brother's handiwork would be good enough to display among her own wares.

Cora realized when, a few nights later, she met Tom Brentwood that he had not much play time in his life. He was serious, responsible and had much of the charm of his small brother.

"Barry told me all about you," he said when Cora invited the two into the shop. "And I'm so keen to help this young man along with a start in life that I've come right along to see what chances there are for selling some of my stuff."

"Do let me see it," said Cora enthusiastically. "I have a fairly good sale for oddments for the house. Oh! These shoe boxes for the fireside are lovely." She was quite astounded at the fine workmanship displayed in the slight collection he had brought. "These candlesticks, too, are quite unusual. You will let me sell them for Barry, won't you?" She turned toward the happy lad. "You see I want to help that bank account, too."

Tom colored slightly. "Barry's been telling secrets." He looked up frankly then at Cora. "I've been doing my best for him—you see we're quite alone in the world and it's a bit difficult to be father and mother. I've taken out a decent insurance policy for him in case he's left alone before he's old enough to look out for himself."

"Well," Cora said presently and her voice was softer than she knew. "I think I am going to help you and Barry a whole lot and I want to begin by asking you both to stay and keep me from being lonesome through my evening meal—besides, I'm rather proud of my cooking. You have a hobby for making 'things' out of old boxes and I have a hobby for making tasty food out of 'things.'"

"Oh, Tom, do let's stay—I should love to." He gazed hopefully up at his big brother. "I'll wash up afterward while you two talk."

Tom laughed and looked at Cora. He knew then and there that Barry had found a mother while he had found—love.

AMERICAN VETERAN GETS CALL FROM FRENCH ARMY

Offers Commission to Wisconsin Student, Who, Wounded in Its Service, Lost Memory Three Years.

Madison, Wis.—The French army, with whom he fought in the World war, receiving a wound which made three years pass as a night, has again beckoned H. L. Rice, erstwhile student at the University of Wisconsin. Rice, who is thirty-one, and was born in Pennsylvania, has been offered a commission as major in the French army, he said, and he plans to accept it.

Rice said he enlisted in France in 1912 and became a lieutenant in the heavy cavalry. With the opening of the World war his outfit was sent to help stop the Germans. German artillery took a heavy toll, and the 200 survivors were further demoralized when they engaged a regiment of Uhlans. Rice was wounded. The French finally fought their way through. Then at dusk, Rice heard a shell explode.

"I didn't feel a thing," he said. "When I woke up I was home in South Dakota. Three years had elapsed as though I had been asleep overnight."

The soldier had been in a French hospital for a year and was brought home by a French soldier. Two medals, the Belgian Order of Leopold and the French Legion of Honor, had been awarded to him.

"I didn't do anything to get them—just got shot up and happened to be the only survivor of the outfit that I know of," he remarked.

Rice's memory was restored in 1917 and he has attended the University of Wisconsin intermittently since then.

A silver plate has taken the place of that part of his skull torn away by the German shell.

Find Prehistoric Sea Bottom in Michigan

Houghton, Mich.—A sea beach formed 1,000,000,000 years ago, one of the oldest in the world, is located in the upper peninsula, according to Prof. W. A. Seaman of the department of geology of Michigan college of mining and technology here. He says traces are still preserved in the hardest rocks. This old sea beach is on a low, rocky point near the Marquette branch state prison.

Professor Seaman explains that the ancient sea deposited considerable sand, salt and iron compounds as it advanced over the land. This iron formation stretched over northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and to the Arctic ocean on each side of Hudson bay. The iron ore produced in the Lake Superior region is from this formation.

Professor Seaman also declares that near Champion there was at one time one of the largest and most active volcanoes in the world. It may be seen from the highway as a low hill on the east of Lake Michigan.

The hills south of Marquette are almost entirely composed of ancient sea bottoms, according to Professor Seaman.

Find Civil War Pass Signed by "A. Lincoln"

Rochester, N. Y.—A Civil war pass, signed by President Lincoln and permitting the late Gen. Roger A. Pryor of the Confederate army to pass through the Union lines to General Grant for a conference regarding exchange of prisoners, has just been found here.

It is in possession of W. H. Tisdale, eighty-four years old, who from 1861 to 1864 was an orderly for President Lincoln and later court attendant for General Pryor when he became a federal justice. General Pryor sought the note for years. Mr. Tisdale said, but it was found only recently when a Union veteran named Dubar, who had come into possession of it during the war, sent it to Mr. Tisdale with the request that it be forwarded to Justice Pryor's heirs.

The pass, written on a card, reads: "Allow the bearer, Roger A. Pryor, to pass to General Grant, and report to him for exchange."

"A. LINCOLN."

Raw Wheat as Cure-All Is New Craze in Paris

Paris.—Raw wheat as a cure for all ills is the latest craze of intellectual Parisians.

Andre Laphin, a writer on dietetics, started it in a series of articles in Comedie, the theatrical and artistic daily newspaper, extolling the beneficial efforts of munching a teaspoonful of germinating wheat before lunch every day.

Wheat, he declares, contains in an unusual degree the vitamins lacking in other articles of food, particularly the nerve-stimulating B variety. Many well-known persons followed his advice and profess to have obtained immense benefit.

And now fashionable doctors are prescribing it for their patients, and the principal restaurants are arranging to serve the magic teaspoonful as a hors d'œuvre.

A Catholic Can Be Loyal To His Church and Loyal To His Country At the Same Time—Believes In the Separation of State and Church Which Has Been Exemplified In His Public Career—Believes In the Support of the Public Schools As One of the Corner Stones of American Liberty.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, in a letter to the Atlantic Monthly, Sunday at Boston, declares that he recognizes no power in the Roman Catholic church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the laws of the land.

The governor says; "Taking your letter as a whole and reducing it to commonplace English you imply that there is conflict between religious loyalty to the Catholic faith and patriotic loyalty to the United States."

Governor Smith summed up his career as "an American Catholic" as follows:

"I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church. I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the law of the land."

"I believe in absolute freedom of conscience for all men and in equality of all churches, all sects and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor."

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state and in the strict enforcement of the provisions of the constitution that congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the cornerstones of American liberty. I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith."

"I believe in the principle of non-interference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations and that we should stand steadfastly against any such interference by whomsoever it may be urged. And I believe in the common brotherhood of man under the common fatherhood of God."

The governor, at the start of his letter wrote: "You 'impute' to American Catholics views which, if held by them, would leave open to question the loyalty and devotion to this country and its constitution of more than 20,000,000 American Catholic citizens. I am grateful to you for defining this issue in the open and for your courteous expression of the satisfaction it will bring to my fellow citizens to me to give 'a disclaimer of the convictions' thus imputed."

"Without mental reservation I can and do make that disclaimer. These convictions are held neither by me nor by any other American Catholic as far as I know. Before answering the argument of your letter, however, I must dispose of one of its implications. You put your questions to me in connection with my candidacy for the office of president of the United States. My attitude with respect to that was fully stated in my last inaugural address as governor when, on January 1, 1927, I said:

"I have no idea what the future has in store for me. Everyone else in the United States has some notion about it except myself. No man could stand before this intelligent gathering and say that he was not receptive to the greatest position the world has to give to anyone. But I can say this, that I will do nothing to achieve it except to give to the people of this state the kind and character of service that will make me deserve it."

"I should be a poor American and a poor Catholic alike if I injected religious discussion into a political campaign. Therefore, I would ask you to accept this answer from me not as a candidate for any public office, but as an American citizen, honored with a high elective office, meeting a challenge to his patriotism and his intellectual integrity."

RESPONSIBLE POSITION. Mr. and Mrs. Miller H. Pontius, of New York City, were Easter guests of the former's parents, Judge and Mrs. G. H. Pontius, on their way to Chicago, their future home. Mr. Pontius is vice president of the G. L. Ohlstrom, Inc., Investment Banking company, and he will have charge of the Chicago office. He left Sunday night for the "Windy City," but Mrs. Pontius will remain here for a few days.

William C. Curtis, 25, youngstown, has been returned to Bucyrus to face a murder charge in connection with the slaying of Clarence Lowe, wealthy Leesville farmer.

LITTLE WALNUT FINALLY GIVES UP ITS DEAD

Body of Ernest Dishman, Drowned March 19, Was Found Sunday Morning.

The body of Ernest Dishman, the young man drowned in Little Walnut creek, Saturday night, March 19, was found Sunday morning on a sand bar at the Six Mile bridge near the Walters farm, just below the tourist camp. The body was discovered by three boys of Ashville; S. C. Samp-sill, Gee Salley and Cecil Scott.

Coroner Duntun viewed the body and turned it over to the Albaugh Undertaking company. The remains were brought to this city and prepared for burial.

The condition of the body was remarkably good, in that it had not begun to decompose, but the flesh had begun to slip on his face. The body, evidently, had been preserved by the high waters of the past four weeks. The young man it will be remembered was in the employ of Bates & Rodgers, Chesapeake and Hocking railroad contractors and he lost his life when he attempted to cross the trestle work, while the creek was a raging torrent. He was drowned at the same spot where another employee of the same company, William Truex lost his life January 19, and whose remains were recovered two weeks ago.

Ernest Dishman was born February 1, 1903, at Burksville, Kentucky, and was a son of C. W. and Minnie Murphy Dishman. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers; J. S. Dishman, of Wyoming and Stanley Dishman of Forest Cottage, Kentucky and one sister, Miss Beulah Dishman, at home.

The remains were shipped to the home of his parents at Forest Cottage Monday morning by the Albaugh company. Funeral services will be held Wednesday, April 20.

TWO KILLED AND SEVERAL BADLY HURT

Youngstown — Traffic accidents Sunday took two lives and injured a score of persons. James O'Neal, 58, died after being struck by an automobile driven by John Fisher intoxicated.

Betty Yavorsky, 4, was killed when she ran across the street to join her parents.

THEIR BABY DEAD.

Virginia Rose Bowman, infant daughter of Horton M. and Pauline Carson Bowman, died at the home of her parents, 217 East Union street, Sunday morning at 1:30 o'clock.

The child was born in this city April 13, 1927. Inanition is given as the cause of death.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the graveside at Lithopolis Rev. Mr. Weed officiating.

Poor Man! Barbers Plan Masculine Hair Styles

Indianapolis.—A haircut was just a haircut until woman invaded the barber shop and demanded modes in scissors-wielding.

Now man is to have his choice of hair-cut styles just as definite as those from which woman chooses. Henceforth, under plans of the journeymen barbers' union, his periodic trip to the barber is to be a seance with Dame Fashion.

The union will educate male patrons to have their hair cut to a style adaptable to head and facial contour. Later, says Jacob Fisher, president, a board of fashion arbiters may be established and new styles created. In the Victorian days the barber's artistic urge found outlet in the trimming of beards to conform with the patron's personality, through the grooming of goatees and sideburns. The barren jowl ended that. But again, after many years, men's hair-cutting is to be an art as well as a trade.

INVISIBLE RAY REVEALS ENEMY IN THE DARKNESS

Secret Discovered by British Inventor Is Carefully Guarded by Government.

London.—The British government is jealously guarding its new war secret, a mysterious invisible searchlight ray which makes it impossible for an enemy to conduct military operations at night unobserved.

It is one of the most formidable war weapons yet discovered, and it was discovered accidentally.

John L. Baird, inventor of the television and the discoverer of the mysterious ray, looks more like a staid college professor than a scientist who is perfecting a powerful weapon for a powerful government. He accidentally stumbled on the new ray while he was trying to perfect the television apparatus with which he now broadcasts pictures by radio as far as 150 miles.

It belongs in the infra-red section of the spectrum outside the range of the human eye. His process is to isolate and use the ray which the human eye cannot see, but which is susceptible of being recorded on his secret apparatus.

"So far we are seeing over comparatively short distances, but it has now become simply a question of certain technical improvements and the application of greater power in order to be able to see a person or a scene which is thousands of miles distant from the point where we are looking into the receiving screen."

His associate, Capt. O. G. Hutchinson, goes even further. "Attacking airplanes approaching under the cover of darkness will be disclosed to the defending headquarters by the electric eye of the television. They will be followed by searchlights emitting invisible rays, and as these rays will be unseen by them, they will continue to approach until, without warning, they are brought down by the guns of the defense."

Longest Street in World

Washington street, as it runs from Boston to Providence, R. I., has had some fame as being the longest street in the world, but that honor appears to belong to Watling street, in England, which runs as such from London to Liverpool.

All Material Things

Matter of Viewpoint

A Minneapolis bookseller, speaking one day of a book collector who was making his cautious way through a pile of old books that had just come in, said of him, not disrespectfully, "He is a rather close buyer." I watched him carefully lay aside two or three books that had a suspicious look. Then, after he had gone through the pile I saw him return to the suspicious books, collate them carefully, study their title pages, the copyrights on the back of these pages, give a general look at their condition, and then lay them back on the pile. The decision had been against them.

The next collector who came along would doubtless examine them with interest, buy them to overflow his shelves and fill a place in his closets or garret, whence they would, in time, find their way again to the second-hand bookstore. He was the less cautious buyer, A. J. R. comments, in the Minneapolis Journal.

I once read of "a close buyer" in another line who must have had Yankee ancestry. He did the buying for the family larder and carried a microphone. With this invention, he cautiously tested the nuts and apples. If a worm were inside, the microphone rendered its gnawing audible and the apple or nut was rejected. The fruiterer regarded the man's actions with some distaste.

I thought of the robin's work on the lawn. Doubtless the bird has a microphone ear and is able to hear the earthworm gnawing away at the planet, and thus he locates his prey and drags him triumphantly out.

Everything in the point of view. The man with the microphone doubtless patted himself on his mental back and thought of himself as a cautious and wise buyer. The fruiterer's inner description of him was not so flattering.

Speaking of the point of view, the bishop of Hereford, in England, is quoted in an epigram that will make you smile. He says:

Pennant Scarecrows

Tiny flags that may be seen fluttering in the gardens in Japan are used to frighten birds away, thus protecting the garden. A lath upright is placed about every 20 feet, and a cord carried from post to post. On the cord strips of paper and cloth are tied. The fluttering pennants are, therefore, a graceful adaptation of the scarecrow idea.

ALASKA, NOT GOLD, HOLDS SOURDOUGHS

Stay Despite Wealth and World Outside.

Fairbanks, Alaska.—One section of Interior Alaska is a land of forgotten men. And the men themselves have wiped from their minds all memories of the vanities of the civilized world outside.

Three dozen men are living within the Arctic circle on the Koyukuk river with fortunes in gold, ranging from $35,000 to $75,000, according to Capt. Earl Webb, a prospector, who, after striking pay, is here on his regular winter vacation.

Most of the self-interested men are a remnant of the great trek toward the mecca of gold in the early Klondike days. They prospect the creeks in summer, hunt, fish and trap in winter. They have married native women and settled down to enjoy their modest fortunes where wants are limited to food and a few clothes.

They use the parcel post and express to secure what luxuries their tastes demand, but there is no desire to leave their polar wilderness.

Now and then some prospector makes an unusually large cleanup and turns his dust in at one of the local banks. Then only can an estimate be made of the amount of gold being regularly taken from one of Alaska's creeks. And the greatest amounts apparently come from streams far within the Arctic circle.

The reticent attitude of the grim miners who come and go in silence and secrecy gives rise to many rumors of greater wealth than the world has ever known somewhere up there along the edge of the known land.

What lies in the undiscovered continent just beyond Point Barrow offers the greatest lure to Alaskan sourdoughs.

That gold in large nuggets of a peculiar bright yellow color is waiting in the creeks along the tundra country is certain, for but recently one miner brought by dog sled four cases of dust as but a portion of his cleanup. The four parcels totaled over $40,000.

Airplanes alone can aid men in reaching and holding down these storm-bound regions and bring them supplies week in and week out, say old-timers. But the lure of gold will bring airplanes sooner or later.

Wax Finish for Floors

Although the wax will act as a filler if applied directly to the oak floor, it is best to use a paste filler slightly colored as a basis for the wax finish. Slightly colored paste filler tends to equalize the variation in color between various pieces of flooring and results in a more beautiful floor.

Chinese Philanthropy Odd

Quaint forms of philanthropy are evident in almost every part of China. Funds are maintained for transporting to his native province any man who dies away from home, another organization provides coffins for poor children, and another society sets up "drinking fountains" of tea or water for the thirsty coolies who are lowest in the scale of Chinese labor.

Plaited Plaid Taffeta Skirt; Velvet Jacket

This modish sports outfit, worn by Marlon Nixon, featured motion picture player, consists of a plaited plaid taffeta skirt, black velvet jacket and yellow crepe de chine blouse. A small black felt sports hat is used with the outfit.

Linen Returns to Favor for Spring and Summer

Sport linen frocks have been in greater numbers than ever before at the Southern resorts and they are forecast as popular items of the spring and summer wardrobes. The constant appearance of silk at all times of the year is apt to become monotonous and the smart woman is searching for something new to add variety and originality to her summer gowns. One thing which has given impetus to the linen vogue is the introduction of a noncrushable cloth which is practically free of the old wrinkling habits of the fabric. This is accomplished by a pre-shrinkage of the cloth from 45 to 36 inches.

Possibly the interest society has felt in the flashing white figures on the tennis courts may have suggested the solution. In any case white linen has made a spectacular entry on the fashion stage through the medium of the sports dress, and its popularity is spreading fast.

Checks Are on List to Have Vogue This Spring

A revival of checked materials is among the many new modes promised by those sending information from the fashion centers of Paris. Big checks, little checks, broken checks and the conventional designs that are so chic. They appear in the silks, the light weight woolsens, even on the cotton fabrics which are destined to have a vogue from all reports. Checks must be used with discretion, however, especially the large designs, and the broken effects. Small checked materials, however, are not so trying, so that any woman who likes them may indulge her taste in some way at least. As checks tend toward the tailored effects, they will be found most adaptable to the present day modes.

Bolero, Belt, Blousant, Smart Costume Words

Bolero, belt and blousant are three words which have been frequently used by couturiers this season. Practically every frock presented claims the right to the use of one of these smart words, some models even coming in for a double share of chic in this regard. On the blousing bodice appeared two superposed plaits giving the effect of a bolero, while the wide belt, draped into a buckle in front, left no doubt as to the designer's intention to indicate definitely just where the waistline should be. The sleeves are long and the skirt is straight and widened by large box plaits.

Latest Raincoat Models in Toned-Down Colors

Raincoats have run a wide gamut of both materials and colors in the last year. Some have been wild enough for the mists and deluges of Borneo. But now the rain shedders are taking on more sober characteristics. The more expensive dress designers are originating them with as much care as the garments they cover. One of the latest is of waterproofed black satin lined with black and white checked silk which also forms collar, cuffs and lapels.

The Practical Sports Suit

Designers of the popular sports suit nowadays have a task to perform in obtaining practicability and decorativeness at the same time. They have discovered it is possible to be practical in a becoming way. That is why white is the favorite color utilized at the moment. Beige with some bright color in conjunction also is advocated.

Paid for Stolen Onion

An onion stolen 35 years ago from Hagemeyer's grocery store at Holden, Mo., finally proved too strong for the conscience of S. G. Yoder, now of Kent, Ohio. He inclosed a $1 bill in this letter: "About 85 years ago I and my schoolmates were at your store in Holden, Mo., and we each took an onion, unknown to you. Now the good Lord has burdened our souls and we want to make restitution and ask His forgiveness."—Exchange.

A recent bride on one of her first shopping trips determined to have it out with the butcher.

"That was a terrible hamburger I nought here yesterday!" she said.

"Is that so? I'm sorry to hear that.
Here is some we made today. Try it.
I'm sure you'll find it very good."

"No, indeed," she said. "You don't fool me again; just give me two pounds of ham and I'll make my own hamburger."—Forbes' Magazine.

Morg Help

"Has your husband a prospering business?" the young bride was asked.

"Indeed he has," was the confident reply. "He must be taking lots of money, for he told me last night they had to appoint a receiver to assist him."

NO ENCUMBRANCE

He—And your dad owns this estate with no encumbrances on it, you say?
She—None but ma and myself.

Delicate Hint

"Did Hawkins ask you to settle that bill you owed him when he was in the other day?"

"Not exactly."

"Not exactly?"

"No, but he carried a blank receipt in his hand while he remained."

In Style

Daughter—Father, can you let me have a little money? I haven't a skirt fit to wear.

Father—Well, what of it? If any of the girls have these days, they're not wearing 'em.

Not by Choice

Auntie—Do you ever play with bad little boys, Willie?

Willie—Yes, auntie.

Auntie—I'm surprised. Why don't you play with good little boys?

Willie—Their mothers won't let 'em.

No Alternative

Neighbor—Why do you whip your little boy? It was the cat that upset the vase of flowers.

Parent—I can't beat the cat. I belong to the S. P. C. A.

We Get You, Jimmy

Teacher—And what are ancestors, Jimmy?

Urchin—Ancestors is old folks that wouldn't be here now if you hadn't had 'em.

Not Appropriate Time

Would-Be Suicide—Don't rescue me.
I want to die.

Would-Be Rescuer—Well, you'll have to postpone that; I want a life-saving medal.

On One Condition

"Could you let me have $20 on this suit of clothes?"

Pawnbroker (eyeing the suit up and down)—Well, maybe I could, if der is about $18 in der pockets.

Print and Conversation

"Some things should not be printed."

"I agree," answered Miss Cayenne.

"But please don't go into conversational details as to what they are."

No Escape

He—I never told a falsehood when I was a child.

She—Exactly when did you start?

Today

Alice—Do you care if I smoke?

Jerry—Do, by all means. I like the smell of it. All my sisters smoke.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

Seems like somebody has imposed on us a little by carrying the mumps into Folksburg, and a few people are now suffering painfully but not seriously with the same. Personally, the writer has nothing to fear, for we grew up in a generation when a body had everything that was catching by the time he had learned to walk real good.

Mrs. Elmira Peck was visited for a while last Sunday by some people from Newport that she used to know.
They were in a mighty fine automobile, and Elmira persuaded them to ride her around town some so that she could wave at her friends and let them see her in that very expensive machine.

Charlie Tolliver, who moved to Folksburg two or three years ago, was visited last week by some of his kin folks from Polk county. They were mighty curious to learn how he is getting along, and when he intimated that he is managing to break even, why it seemed like they thought he had done well by coming here.

Mrs. Amanda Bell has seen an advertisement in the city paper of a store that's run by somebody named Bell. She thinks they might be a realition, and is planning to go up next week and see if she can get a discount on some things she wants to buy.

While Tom Riley was out walking yesterday with his young son, Billie Boy, they met Andrew Allen, and when Tom asked how everything was,
Andrew said it was only tolerable.
Billie Boy didn't quite understand what that meant, and Tom explained it by saying it was about like as if Billy wanted two dollars to buy an air-gun, and got a quarter to buy a bean flipper.

Mrs. Emmett Tucker was a little peevish the other day on account of
she was telling some of her friends that Emmett's got his life insured for $3,000, and somebody remarked in a half-way joke that everything is priced higher now than it's worth.

It was mentioned in these items last week that Mrs. Ed Thomas had lost one of her gloves, which she hoped if anybody found they'd return it to her. Somebody has just sent her one of these striped canvas gloves and wants to know is that it. Mrs.
Thomas wishes to say that hers were kid leather, the best pair that the Star store had in stock.

Miss Daisy Bell, who was to sing a solo at a special function at the school building next Friday night has given notice that she won't be able to appear unless they get out some more programs, and have her name in bigger print than it was on the first ones.

Uncle Bill Bobbitt was speaking recently how storekeepers have changed from what they used to be when they went around with a stub pencil over their ear, and measured a yard of calico by holding it at arm's length from the end of their nose. And he says he knew one man who had such a long nose that he cheated the buyer an inch or two on every yard he measured.

Jason Crabb tried to get his money back that he paid to go into a show at the Gem Theater Saturday night on account of somebody else had the seat that he always sits in.

Lewis Jackson, who has been trying hard for a good while to start a bank account, managed to put in ten dollars last week, and he's been telling several what a safe feeling it gives a man to have money in the bank.

Some comment was made the other day how fast Earl Smiley walks when he goes from one place to another around town, just as if he had something terribly important on hand. And the general opinion was that he might as well take it a little slower, for he usually reaches his destination before he's thought of any particular reason why he's there.

AMUSEMENTS
"The Eagle of the Sea!" What thoughts that phrase must bring to mind! Galleons of gold! Merchant ships! Men-o-war! Valiant vessels! Bold buccaneers! Plundering pirates!
All these will be seen at the Met theater when Frank Lloyd's first Paramount production, "The Eagle of the Sea," makes its local debut. This Charles Tenney Jackson story traces the life of Jean Lafitte, noted American pirate, from the day he adopts the name "Captain Sazarak," until he wins the woman of his heart. Needless to say, this is only accomplished after many hazardous voyages, like ly adventures and fierce fights.
History tells us that Lafitte won amnesty for himself and devil-dog crew when they helped "Old Hickory" Jackson at the Battle of New Orleans. All became respected citizens with the solitary exception of their captain. He broke his parole and disappeared. A reward was then offered for his capture—dead or alive.
With this colorful past, Jean Lafitte arrives in New Orleans seven years later, just at a time when General Jackson's return is being celebrated. There he falls in love with Colonel Lestron's lovely niece, Louise. His courtship progresses very nicely until—Jackson recognizes him and she vehemently voices her dislike of men such as Lafitte.
Then—things started happening. But they come in such surprising fashion that each presents a greater thrill than the one preceding it. Florance Vidor, justly called "the orchid lady of the screen" is featured as is Ricardo Cortez, playing the most spectacular role of his career, that of Jean Lafitte.

The Big Capacity MAYTAG Tub Makes Spring Cleaning easy

THE Maytag's satin-smooth cast-aluminum tub has an exceptionally large capacity. There is ample room for heavy blankets, draperies, curtains, fluffy rugs, and other bulky things that you want washed during spring cleaning time before you store them away.

The tub is heat-retaining—keeps water hot for an entire washing. Through adjustable legs, one of many Maytag comfort-giving features, the washer is easily raised or lowered to suit your height. The tub drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

The famous Maytag wringer sets close to the water level—does away with the lifting of heavy wet pieces and automatically adjusts itself to a heavy blanket or sheer handkerchief and wrings both equally dry.

Phone the Maytag Dealer

Use a Maytag next washday without obligation or expense. Wash big tubfuls of ordinary clothes in 3 to 7 minutes. Wash even collar and cuff edges without hand-rubbing. Do a whole washing in one hour. After you have once used the Maytag you will easily understand why it is the world's most-wanted washer—why it won World Leadership in less than 600 days. Try the Maytag—if it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

How Do You Choose Shoes?

Do you select shoes which will be smart and becoming and entirely suited to your needs?—or simply because they happen to be the newest fad?

In a season when so many styles are brought forth, it is very wise to choose your shoes for definite purposes, or to wear with certain costumes. For, after all, being "well dressed" depends upon your own attractiveness. And clothes, or shoes chosen in that way, will always give greater pleasure.

Officials Don't Know What To Do With Slayer, 4.

Chambersburg, Pa., April 15.—UP.—There was no regret, only defiance, in the attitude of 4-year-old Tommy Ruby today as his sorrowing father prepared the lad to attend the funeral of the mother Tommy shot to death.

Coroner Shull has announced that no charges will be pressed against the youth, who, when questioned regarding the killing of his mother, Mrs. Hull Ruby, answered:

"Sure I shot her. I'd shoot her again."

No one seems willing to advance an opinion in town as to what should be done with the lad.

During the questioning of Tommy concerning the shooting he grasped a butcher knife and sought to stab Coroner Shull.

Communion Table Profaned

Shaking of dice on the communion table for Bibles, a custom started 250 years ago in a church at St. Ives, England, has been altered so that the casting will take place on a table placed on the chancel steps. The unusual procedure was started by provisions of the will of Dr. Robert Wild, who bequeathed $250, the yearly income from which was to be expended on Bibles to be cast for by dice on the communion table by six boys and six girls.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

Petitioned To End Receivership of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

Washington, April 16.—The mission to end the receivership of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, said to be one of the largest foreclosures in financial history, was asked today of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This would be the effect of the application filed today with the Commission by the 101-day-old "Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific R. R." organized in Wisconsin by a large majority of the security holders of the old company to take over this eleven thousand mile system operating in twelve of the Northwest states. The only change from the old name of the road is the addition of the word "Pacific."

As one of the outstanding features of the reorganization of the company's financial structure, authority to issue several classes of new securities is asked in the application. They include $106,395,096 principal amount of Fifty Year Five Per Cent Mortgage Bonds, $182,873,693 of Five Per Cent Convertible Adjustment Mortgage Bonds, $118,845,800 par amount of preferred stock, and 1,174,060 shares of common stock without nominal or par value.

The reorganization plan, which was approved recently by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, is unusually comprehensive and, according to railroad experts, will meet all the financial problems of the $750,000,000 "Milwaukee" railroad. The principal objects of the reorganization plan are:

1. A net reduction in the amount of fixed interest-bearing securities of approximately $180,000,000 and a net reduction of annual fixed interest charges on funded debt from about $21,800,000 to less than $14,000,000. This amount, it is believed, will be well within the present earnings of the system, under any conditions. Its present earnings are about $20,000,000 annually.

2. Funding of more than $185,000,000 of obligations maturing during the next ten years into long-term obligations, the interest charges upon more than $104,000,000 of which will be contingent upon earnings. Under its existing capital structure, the system, at the date of receivership, faced maturities during the next ten years of about $239,000,000, which, because of its inadequate earnings, it was without means of meeting.

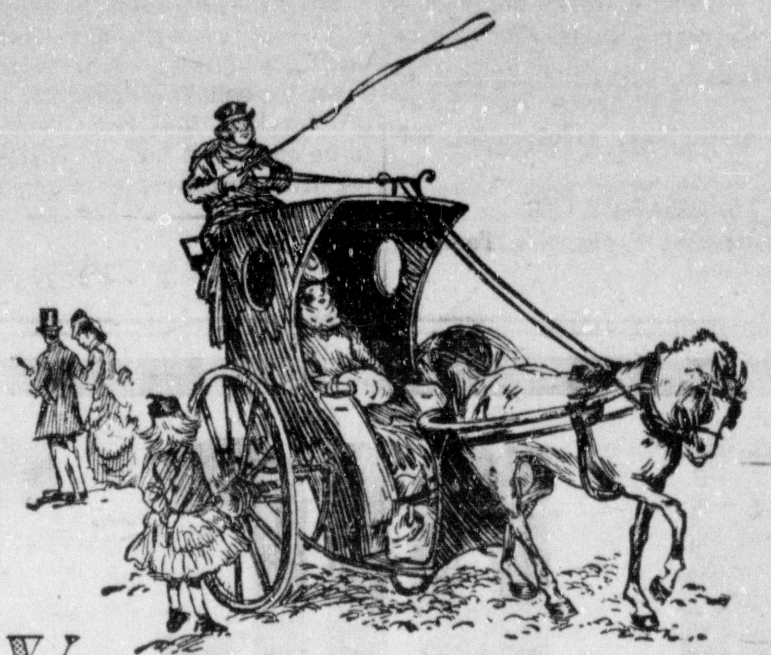

3. Provision for the raising by assessments of about $70,000,000 in cash, of which a large amount is to be set aside for addition and betterment and additional working capital.

4. Release of $18,000,000 of general mortgage bonds now pledged to secure the notes held by the United States Government. The reorganization plan contemplates the immediate adjustment of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul's debt of $55,000,000 to the government. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has accepted the proposed method of repaying the government debt. A saving of approximately $2,000 a day in interest upon the debt to the government will be immediately effected as soon as the plan is consummated. This is but one of many benefits which will accrue from an early termination of the receivership and transfer of the properties to the new company.

5. Adequate provision for the financing of future requirements and for the funding of underlying bonds through the creation of a new financing mortgage of sufficient security to enable the sale of bonds thereunder at normal rate and discounts. At the time of the receivership the railroad had no means of providing for its capital requirements.

The Milwaukee was sold at public auction at Butte, Mont., last November. The purchase price was $140,000,000 and the purchasers assumed all outstanding obligations. The only bid was from Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and The National City Company, representing more than eighty per cent of the security holders, banded together to reorganize the property.

It is expected that the Interstate Commerce Commission will grant hearings on the application at an early date.

Played With Mind Blank
The disclosure is made that during the recent football trial match at Stamford Bridge, Parker, the Arsenal fullback, who was appearing for the Rest against the England eleven, played throughout the second half with his mind a blank.
It was in this half that the game underwent a remarkable transformation, England, who had been two goals down at the interval, winning by 7-3. Parker in some way sustained concussion, and after the match had no recollection whatever of having played in the second half.
It is on record that footballers, while suffering from concussion and quite unconscious of their surroundings, have played with remarkable skill and intelligence, and even scored goals.—London Tit-Bits.

Increased Crop Yield is Shown
Generally Rising Trend Is Indicated by Survey Recently Made.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A generally rising trend in yields per acre of leading crops over the last forty years in the United States is indicated by a survey concluded recently by the Department of Agriculture.
The average yield per acre of corn has increased 18 per cent since 1885, wheat 17 per cent, oats 14 per cent, and potatoes 33 per cent. The total area of the four crops expanded about 52 per cent, but the total production has increased 77 per cent.
Increased production due to higher acre yields alone amounts to 440,000,000 bushels of corn, 120,000,000 bushels of wheat, 165,000,000 bushels of oats, and 115,000,000 bushels of potatoes, a total of over 800,000,000 bushels of the four crops.

Outstanding Increases.
The outstanding increases in yields have been in the North Atlantic and the northern portion of the South Atlantic states, with somewhat lesser increases in the East North Central states. Similar changes have occurred in many portions of the West North Central states where pioneer agricultural methods have disappeared.

Corn yields in the North Atlantic states have increased from 6 to 10 bushels per acre during the 40 years, in the East North Central group from 6 to 12 bushels, and in the northern section of the South Atlantic states from 9 to 14 bushels. Yields average about 8 bushels per acre higher in Iowa, and 6 bushels in Minnesota.

Wheat yields have increased 5 to 6 bushels per acre in the northeastern portions of the country, but a decrease is shown in Ohio and other states in the Ohio valley for the period 1920-24, due largely to unfavorable weather. Despite the expansion of the wheat area in Kansas into semi-arid regions, yields there have remained practically stationary. Yields in Missouri in a considerably expanded wheat area have remained low and practically stationary.

Statistics of wheat yields per acre suggest that the southern part of the corn belt, as represented by Missouri and eastern Kansas, has lagged behind the northern portions as represented by Iowa and Illinois, in the development of agricultural practices and soil management methods that tend to raise the acre yields of important crops.

Pioneer Methods Used.
Continuance of pioneer methods in the spring wheat region and the expansion of wheat production into drier areas have prevented a rise in the state averages. Moreover, the economists point out, since moisture is commonly the limiting factor in crop production in the semiarid portions of the plains states, it appears probable that this part of the country will not experience as much rise in acre yields as is shown for the northeastern states and for northwestern Europe.

Department economists declare that developments in coming decades with regard to acre yields will depend, as in the past, to a great extent on prices of agricultural products. Rising values normally would result in increasing intensification and a higher level productivity through the wider use of better cultivation methods, development of suitable rotations, including the growth of legumes, more efficient use of crop residues and animal manures, greater use of commercial fertilizers, and the more common use of selected seed.

Full details of the department's study have been published in Department Bulletin No. 1458-D, entitled "The Trend Toward a More Effective Use of the Land as Shown by the Yield Per Acre of Certain Crops," copies of which may be obtained upon request to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Agricultural Facts

Sharp shares on the plows mean a better and cheaper piece of plowing.

If the weather never changed, some folks wouldn't have very much to talk about.

Many a poor crop stand in spring can be traced to poorly protected seed in winter.

Seeds are a small part of the cost of raising a crop. Cheap seeds are often expensive at any price.

Bank credit costs only from one-half to one-third as much as credit given by feed dealers and store keepers.

The idea that no trip at sea is complete without a storm might well be applied to life in general—on some days.

They say the boll-weevil was a benefit to southern agriculture. Since the corn borer can't stand good farming, maybe it will have a good effect on the North.

The nature of farm manure is such that large losses of the plant nutrients may occur, so in view of this fact it is necessary to adopt a system of handling manure on the farm which will cut down this loss.

Janney, Muncie, Ind., and Harriet B. Meeker, Indianapolis, nephews and nieces, $7,000 each.

Bennett Heath, who receives a legacy of $40,000 under the will, is a nephew of Mrs. Charles H. May, of this city.

Speed Best Weapon to Foil Cattle Rustlers

Los Angeles, Calif.—Cattle rustling, one of the oldest crimes in California, has had a recent revival, the sheriff's office declared, and special methods have been devised in co-operation with the cattle protection bureau, to stop the thefts and catch the thieves.

Because there have been very few cattle thefts, in the last 20 years until recently, the sheriff's office says, most cattle owners do not know what to do when they learn of their losses. They must act quickly if their action is to do any good, notifying the sheriff with a description of the stolen cattle and their brands.

"Time is an important element in the capture of a cattle thief," says a bulletin put out by the sheriff. "Such a thief transports stock to a slaughter house and has the cattle killed within a few hours of the time he makes the steal. This obliterates the opportunity of the cattle owner identifying his stock or making a conviction in the courts very certain."

To be sure of being observed by Opportunity, stand in her pathway.

Propaganda Always

It is probable that there has been what we now know as propaganda in connection with every important movement in human history. As to the American Revolution, for example, Thomas Paine is said to have made it his boast that he brought about the revolution by his pamphlet, "Common Sense."

Cora's Cases in Storage

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

CORA was in more or less of a quandary as to what was the best way of getting rid of the large cases that were accumulating in her small storage room. Once in a while she wished there were a man about the place.

She had watched boys, with their funny little homemade carts, collecting and splitting up boxes, left on the sidewalks.

"I suppose they make them into kindling," Cora mused, and decided she had better haul one of these youngsters and offer him her cases. They were of a fairly decent thickness and no doubt the boys would be glad to cart them away.

Lamp shades, telephone covers, shoe boxes, cushions and things of that sort comprised the stock in trade of Cora's little shop.

"How much can I have them for, miss," asked the lad and Cora noted that he had removed his cap upon coming into the shop.

"Goodness, child, I don't want anything for them. You're doing me a good turn in taking them."

"My brother always gives me a quarter and says I must offer to pay for any especially good boxes I find."

"And what do you use the wood for?" asked Cora.

"My brother has a hobby for making things," announced the small boy proudly, "and he sells a lot of them and gives me the money. I have thirty-seven dollars in the bank now."

"Oh," exclaimed Cora vastly interested. "What things does your brother make?"

Cora was sure that she had never met anyone so delightfully naive as this small boy whose brother made "things."

"Tom and I live together and he gets all my meals 'cause he doesn't want me to eat just any old thing. We have a flat."

"I should just love to meet your brother," said Cora, and added swiftly, "perhaps he will let me see some of his wooden things before he sells them elsewhere. Do you think he would?"

"Sure he would," said Barry with much authority for so small a person. "And he'll make some pretty swell boxes out of this fine wood and some peachy bookshelves."

"I can see your bank account being a swell affair, too," laughed Cora and the boy joined in. From that moment they were fast friends and Barry promised to bring his big brother round and also to call for more cases in a day or two.

Cora watched him as he trundled his well-made cart off through the traffic, laden as it was with two large crates.

"I wouldn't mind working for a boy like that either," she told herself and hoped that big brother's handiwork would be good enough to display among her own wares.

Cora realized when, a few nights later, she met Tom Brentwood that he had not much play time in his life. He was serious, responsible and had much of the charm of his small brother.

"Barry told me all about you," he said when Cora invited the two into the shop. "And I'm so keen to help this young man along with a start in life that I've come right along to see what chances there are for selling some of my stuff."

"Do let me see it," said Cora enthusiastically. "I have a fairly good sale for oddments for the house. Oh! These shoe boxes for the fireless are lovely." She was quite astounded at the fine workmanship displayed in the slight collection he had brought.

"These candlesticks, too, are quite unusual. You will let me sell them for Barry, won't you?" She turned toward the happy lad. "You see I want to help that bank account, too."

Tom colored slightly. "Barry's been telling secrets." He looked up frankly then at Cora. "I've been doing my best for him—you see we're quite alone in the world and it's a bit difficult to be father and mother. I've taken out a decent insurance policy for him in case he's left alone before he's old enough to look out for himself."

"Well," Cora said presently and her voice was softer than she knew. "I think I am going to help you and Barry a whole lot and I want to begin by asking you both to stay and keep me from being lonesome through my evening meal—besides, I'm rather proud of my cooking. You have a hobby for making 'things' out of old boxes and I have a hobby for making tasty food out of 'things'."

"Oh, Tom, do let's stay—I should love to." He gazed hopefully up at his big brother. "I'll wash up afterward while you two talk."

Tom laughed and looked at Cora. He knew then and there that Barry had found a mother while he had found—love.

AMERICAN VETERAN GETS CALL FROM FRENCH ARMY

Offers Commission to Wisconsin Student, Who, Wounded in Its Service, Lost Memory Three Years.

Madison, Wis.—The French army, with whom he fought in the World War, receiving a wound which made three years pass as a night, has again beckoned H. L. Rice, erstwhile student at the University of Wisconsin. Rice, who is thirty-one, and was born in Pennsylvania, has been offered a commission as major in the French army, he said, and he plans to accept it.

Rice said he enlisted in France in 1912 and became a lieutenant in the heavy cavalry. With the opening of the World War his outfit was sent to help stop the Germans. German artillery took a heavy toll, and the 200 survivors were further demoralized when they engaged a regiment of Uhlans. Rice was wounded. The French finally fought their way through. Then at dusk, Rice heard a shell explode.

"I didn't feel a thing," he said. "When I woke up I was home in South Dakota. Three years had elapsed as though I had been asleep overnight."

The soldier had been in a French hospital for a year and was brought home by a French soldier. Two medals, the Belgian Order of Leopold and the French Legion of Honor, had been awarded to him.

"I didn't do anything to get them—just got shot up and happened to be the only survivor of the outfit that I know of," he remarked.

Rice's memory was restored in 1917 and he has attended the University of Wisconsin intermittently since then. A silver plate has taken the place of that part of his skull torn away by the German shell.

Find Prehistoric Sea Bottom in Michigan

Houghton, Mich.—A sea beach formed 1,000,000,000 years ago, one of the oldest in the world, is located in the upper peninsula, according to Prof. W. A. Seaman of the department of geology of Michigan college of mining and technology here. He says traces are still preserved in the hardest rocks. This old sea beach is on a low, rocky point near the Marquette branch state prison.

Professor Seaman explains that the ancient sea deposited considerable sand, salt and iron compounds as it advanced over the land. This iron formation stretched over northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and to the Arctic ocean on each side of Hudson bay. The iron ore produced in the Lake Superior region is from this formation.

Professor Seaman also declares that near Champlain there was at one time one of the largest and most active volcanoes in the world. It may be seen from the highway as a low hill on the east of Lake Michigan.

The hills south of Marquette are almost entirely composed of ancient sea bottoms, according to Professor Seaman.

Find Civil War Pass Signed by "A. Lincoln"

Rochester, N. Y.—A Civil War pass, signed by President Lincoln and permitting the late Gen. Roger A. Pryor of the Confederate army to pass through the Union lines to General Grant for a conference regarding exchange of prisoners, has just been found here.

It is in possession of W. H. Tisdale, eighty-four years old, who from 1861 to 1864 was an orderly for President Lincoln and later court attendant for General Pryor when he became a federal justice. General Pryor sought the note for years, Mr. Tisdale said, but it was found only recently when a Union veteran named Dubar, who had come into possession of it during the war, sent it to Mr. Tisdale with the request that it be forwarded to Justice Pryor's heirs.

The pass, written on a card, reads: "Allow the bearer, Roger A. Pryor, to pass to General Grant, and report to him for exchange."

Raw Wheat as Cure-All Is New Craze in Paris

Paris.—Raw wheat as a cure for all ills is the latest craze of intellectual Parisians.

Andre Laphin, a writer on dietetics, started it in a series of articles in Comedia, the theatrical and artistic daily newspaper, extolling the beneficial effects of munching a teaspoonful of germinating wheat before lunch every day.

Wheat, he declares, contains in an unusual degree the vitamins lacking in other articles of food, particularly the nerve-stimulating B variety. Many well-known persons followed his advice and profess to have obtained immense benefit.

And now fashionable doctors are prescribing it for their patients, and the principal restaurants are arranging to serve the magic teaspoonful as a hors d'oeuvre.
